

CCDD promotes policies and solutions that aim to advance the well-being of all Kentuckians with Intellectual and other Developmental Disabilities (I/DD), their families, and all who love them, by supporting and advancing policies that create and maintain true community inclusion, such as:

Medicinal Cannabis

All patients should have the legal access to use medicinal cannabis or cannabis based products as a treatment option under the care of their physician.

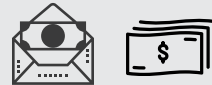

Supported Decision Making

SDM principles allow individuals to stay in control of their lives while receiving the help and assistance they need to do so, thus reducing the need for full guardianship.

Subminimum Wage

Paying sub-minimum wages to individuals with intellectual and other disabilities violates their civil rights and hinders their inclusion in the workplace and the wider economy.

Long-Term Services & Support

Home & Community Based Waiver Services (HCBS) support the ability of individuals to live life on their own terms, are more cost effective than institutions, and promote self-determination.

Education

Inclusive education policies, starting with early childcare settings and continuing through postsecondary education, are necessary to assist Kentuckians with I/DD in reaching their full potential.

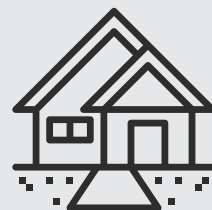

Transportation

Reliable, accessible, and affordable access to transportation is critical to ensure people with I/DD are fully included in all aspects of their communities.

Housing

Individuals with I/DD have a right to safe, accessible, and affordable housing in the community.

Civil Rights

All people, regardless of ability, are entitled to equal human and civil rights.
